Story:

My half brother, who fancies himself an aspiring filmmaker, has had a number of girlfriends. One in particular, a Russian girl, flew in from St Petersburg for a two-week visit and stayed for six months. Ultimately she was “not the one.” But I really liked her because while she was the sweetest person I ever met, she also had a temper to reckon with. This drink is in her memory. Incidentally, her name was Margarita.

BRIEF BIO:
 I moved to Kailua Kona, Hawaii at age 5, attended Hualalai Academy, a private high school along in the performing arts and graduated from the LA Film School in 2007. I've been making films since I was 12. Starting with humorous shorts and school projects, I expanded to commercial projects and contests. In 2004 I directed and starred in a PSA, that placed first in the Big Island Film Festival. I've since worked on concerts and syndicated programs as a camera man or production assistant. I have entered several video contests and been fortunate enough to win the Grand Prize or First Place in a few.

For the last few years I have been concentrating on personal and commercial projects to build experience and develop skills. In addition to making "sleazy videos" featuring several characters I have developed over the years, I create YouTube commercials (short videos) for an Oahu concert promoter and shoot commercials for local companies.

With very few exceptions I script, produce, direct, star in (usually in several roles), shoot and edit all my videos. I write and perform much of the music, and create most of the costumes. All this is done with virtually no budget in the tiny village of Kailua Kona, Hawaii.

My goal is to one day act in and/or make films that change peoples' lives in a positive and profound way.

BRIEF BIO:
 Alexander J. Farnham was born in Burlington, Vermont on October 16, 1987. He moved to Kailua Kona, Hawaii at age five and attended public school until enrolling in Hualalai Academy, a private school along in the performing arts, for his high school years. After graduating from the Academy he attended a film school where he completed a 12 month immersion course in filmmaking, with concentrations in acting, directing and editing.

He started making videos at 12 and completed his first commercial film when he was 14. It was a documentary film for the Joseph May Memorial International Freezing Competition, held in Kailua Kona, Hawaii. He has since directed and edited several films, mostly in the area of acting, directing and editing.

After graduating from film school, he started making videos for distribution on YouTube. He now has two very popular YouTube channels and has created over 500 original videos for those channels. His primary channel, MockStars, has generated nearly 60 million views and has over 225 thousand subscribers. His videos are predominantly comical and cover a variety of timely subjects, especially in the world of entertainment. He has created several music videos and his songs are featured on iTunes. He has also done several mock audition videos, based on popular recent films or film "types".

In September of 2012 he was hired to host a new Discovery Network digital channel entitled Animatist News. In addition to hosting, he researched, wrote and directed many of the 5 times a week episodes about a variety of topics and news in the animal world. A few of the episodes exceeded a million views and one episode exceeded 2 million views. At the time Animatist was one of the most popular channels in Discovery's digital offering. Alex left the franchise after about 12 months, when Discovery decided to discontinue production significantly.

Alex is currently creating original content for YouTube and pursuing a career in acting and film making.
