Channeling My Buddy Jack

Jack: "Dad, up here in Dog Heaven we think men who want to pretend to be women is kind of like driving a car with the steering wheel on the wrong side." In my sleep I laughed and replied, "Yeah, the vast majority of Americans could care less which side the steering wheel is on as long as the driver keeps the vehicle in the correct lane."

Jack: "Dad, up here we see Hunter Biden is claiming to be broke, and we think he should just sell more of his paintings for $500,000 each." Sleepily I replied, "Jack they say that Hunter makes his paintings by blowing the paint from a straw onto the canvas." Jack came back with, "Gee Dad, I hope he is using a paper straw!"

Jack: "Dad, do you remember that before the internet people thought the cause of stupidity was due to lack of access to information?" Me: "Yeah. Well Jack, I think we can clearly see that wasn't the problem."

Jack: "Dad, we see up here that an actual board advisory member of the Oregon Mental Health department identifies as a turtle." In my sleep I replied, "Yes Jack, the person's name is JD Holt, uses they/them for pronouns, identifies as turtle and is on Instagram as JDTerrapin." We both agreed the truth is indeed stranger than fiction.

Crapper Shorts:

Crabby Old Folks? Now that I am 74 years old, I can understand why older people can sometimes appear to be 'crabby'. When confronted by this, younger people need to just relax, in spite of what they may think, it is most likely not their pink hair, the tattoos across most visible parts of their bodies, the bone in their nose, or even their gender confused buddy. They just need to understand, there is a high probability the older person is in pain from arthritis, sickness, or a sore back. Or even more likely is, they are just a little uncomfortable from either an impending bodily function, or lack of one that IS needed.

Question: Is the country of Turkey the only place in the world that sells dried apricots? Inquiring minds want to know.

Age Issues for Auditors: It seems that many politicians are upset about the fact that DOGE auditors uncovering BILLIONS of wasted (fraud?) federal monies are too young to be doing such 'sensitive' work. I would argue that if a person 18 years old can go fight wars for us, if they are a skilled coder/auditor, let them have at it. A person has to remember, many of the same politicians doing the hysterical complaining were, a few short years ago, wanting us to listen to an equally hysterical, then 13-year-old, Greta, Thunberg lecture us on her parent's bullshit 'climate change' ideas.

JUST SAYING!

It seems that, in our retirement, Linda and I are simply not seeing old friends enough. Not only are we are busy every single day, but we are in Arizona quite a bit of the year. And now that I'm out of the business world it seems we just don't see everyone like we used to.

That is one reason I have been writing Crapper Chronicles for these past few years. It is a way for us to stay in touch with old friends and gives me an excuse to keep writing. I hope you enjoy it, but since some of the times I get toooooo opinionated, be sure and let me know if you want off the "Crapper" list.

By the same token, if you want to add someone to the list, just shoot me an email and I'll get it done. Richard Farnham of Farnham Associates on the Big Island of Hawaii does my layout work and makes sure my email list is kept secure.

Old Philosopher Wisdom: The truth does not mind being questioned. A lie does not like being challenged.

Carbon News: Question: What is the name of that incredible machine that eats carbon, exhales oxygen, costs literally nothing, provides humanity with unbelievable amounts of building material, and actually builds itself?
Answer: The TREE

Tranny News: Cause: Man follows young girl into women's bathroom, saying he 'identifies' as a woman.
Effect: Man's teeth are knocked out by girl's father, who 'identifies' as the tooth fairy.

Education Update: Problem: Lady goes to register her 4-year-old son in preschool. She is asked "What are his pronouns?" She says, "He is 4 years old; some days he is Batman, some days Spiderman."
Solution: She leaves and enrolls her son in a Catholic school.

Fake News: Cause: Fake news release reports, "Trump will start deporting LLLD's (Liberal Left Leaning Democrats) to Mexico."
Effect: Mexico immediately starts building a wall.

Secret Plot Revealed: Action: The top secret conservative Republican plot has been revealed. Dubbed, 'Operation Let Them Speak,' this top secret operation was designed to make LLLD's look like idiots.
Result: 'Operation Let Them Speak' is working beyond conservative Republicans wildest expectations.

More Fake News: Actual Fact: Governor Newsom has been instrumental in turning what was once a powerhouse state into a debt ridden, anti-business, tax heavy, homeless shelter: Businesses and people are moving to business-friendly states in droves.
Rumor: Trump is renaming California's San Andreas Fault, "Newsom's Fault."

You Have to be Kidding Me: Navaho Translators?

Our health care provider sends us a periodic paper stating that they comply with all federal guidelines. You would think endlessly sending out this notification paper would be enough virtue signing; but the paper also supplies the information needed to: "File a complaint with them, or the applicable government agency if you feel they, the insurance provider, has failed you in any way." However, that still is not enough; the real kicker is you can get all this information in Espanol (Spanish), Deutsch, (German) @*#?! (Chinese), Oroomiffo (Oromo), Tieng Viet (Vietnamese), IKirundi (Bantu), ?#@*?! (Arabic), Kiswahili, (Swahili), #@%?!$ (Pycckwan), #@!%$?! (Russian), $@!#?@? (Nepal), Francais (French), #!#!$?I (Korean), #@!#!$ (Japanese), English (English) Tagalog (Filipino) Norsk (Norwegian), and, wait for it, Dina Bizaad (Navaho). Are you kidding me? We have to print the complaint form in Navaho? Since the paper also says an 'interpreter' will be provided if needed, I was wondering, if in the case of that mythical, lonely Navaho individual, who after a hundred years or so, did not understand the English language, absolutely had to have an interpreter, possibly the insurance company can get in contact with a World War II 'code talker'.

After reading through all this crap, a person has to wonder, since the insurance company I am talking about is a North Dakota company, do all these people of such diverse nationalities really live in North Dakota? Secondly, if they do live and hold jobs in North Dakota, enabling them to even have this insurance, they must speak passable English in order to hold down the job. A reasonable person, would ask, why in hell do we need to send them a complaint form or provide an 'interpreter' in a foreign language? It is like we are literally begging them to find some problem so they can file a complaint. It is reported that well over 90% of Democratic lawmakers are lawyers and subsequently close to 100% of all PAC money from the National Lawyers Association is given to Democratic candidates. One wonders if maybe they are just trying to make it easier for their fellow lawyer buddies to get more work.

Marketing 101

Two Winery Owners Talking: First winery owner: "Bob, the vast majority of people can't tell a $50 bottle of wine from a $250 bottle of wine." "The only difference is whether or not it is 'exclusive.'" Other winery owner: "Why in hell are we NOT calling our $50 wine 'Estate' or 'Blah Blah Vinyard' and selling it for $250 then?" Result: A hell of a lot of $50 wine is now being sold for $250; one would assume winery profits have shot up.

Two Ranchers Talking: First rancher: "Hey Sam, my buddy Bob, who owns a winery, was telling me that since most people can't tell a $50 wine from a $250 wine, he and his other winery owners started using phrases like 'Estate' raised, or harvested in the 'Blah Blah Vineyard' and then raised the price on these wines WAY up." "My winemaker buddy says profits are soaring!" Other rancher: "Well, since most consumers only care whether a steak tastes good, or if it is tough or tender, why don't we start calling some of our 'Prime' quality beef 'Wagu' and charge double or triple for it?" Result: 'Wagu' beef at double to triple the price of virtually the same thing as 'Prime' beef is flooding restaurants. One would assume profits are up.

Steel Cut Oats: It is unknown if the breakfast cereal people were talking to the winery owners or the cattle people, but now we have premium priced, 'steel cut' oats. It would seem to me, if you are going to mill or cut oats for consumption it would be hard to comprehend how in hell you could do it WITHOUT using steel. But I digress. I usually have oatmeal for breakfast. I have tried 1minute oats, steel cut oats, and of course the 'old fashioned' 100% whole grain rolled oats. I don't know if the 1-minute oats are cut with steel or not, I don't know if the 100% whole grain oats are 'rolled' with steel rollers. The textures and prices may vary, but folks; they all taste like oats to me.

Senior Health Tips: Motility Anyone? If you are lucky enough to survive your childhood, young adulthood, your career choice, and parenting duties; now, 'lucky you,' welcome to old age. Days of golfing, playing cards, reminiscing about former glory days; you know the drill. However, pleasant these activities may seem, let us not forget the pleasure and satisfaction of a good morning 'movement'. Of course, proper diet can help us elders with this issue, but now many other products are marketed to help us 'keep the line moving' so to speak. For years I was thinking Metamucil products were the best but after taking the advice of my old buddy Reiling, I have switched to my new favorite, Citra..something: Or as Reiling refers the product: 'Shits-so-well!' Be sure and contact Reiling and I for more helpful health tips!

Election Integrity is a Bi-Partisan Issue

It seems the number of issues confronting United States citizens these days is daunting. We have boys in girls sports and locker rooms, despite that the vast majority of people in both political parties, 79% (91% Republican and 67% Democrat), clearly see the unfairness and literal insanity of allowing such behavior. Given these numbers, it is amazing that the current Democratic leadership continues to push and support this nonsense. Nonsense that only benefits a miniscule tiny percentage of the United States population, while at the same time being a terrible and unfair detriment to the huge majority of our country's population. Additionally, the vast majority of Democratic voters are not in favor of reparations, they do not support DEI, and they support getting rid of fraud, duplication and abuse of funds in the federal government. Finally, they, as well as Republican voters, and for that matter, anyone with a functioning brain, fully SUPPORT the deportation of illegal immigrant criminals; and SUPPORT the local police working with ICE to accomplish it.

The glaring 'Elephant in the room' is voter integrity, and the above-mentioned issues bring up the uncomfortable fact that possibly the people currently driving the Democratic political machine are so confident of 'mail in voting', 'ballot harvesting', and 'questionable voting software' that they totally ignore the majority wishes of their constituents. How else is it that they seem to effortlessly get socialist/communist leaning politicians elected, place totally politically controlled judges, and in so many cases pass a legislative agenda completely contrary to what both their voter base and their traditional party stood for. It is simply imperative to our country that both the traditional Democrat and Republican parties realize the critical need to eliminate, pursue, and vigorously prosecute voter fraud in all its evil forms.

People; by and large the American voter is not as stupid as we are led to believe. Solid voter integrity from votes cast by bona fide United States Citizens, voters who come from districts determined not by the number on NON-UNITED STATES CITIZENS, but from districts where the population is determined by using the number of ACTUAL BONA-FIDE AMERICAN CITIZENS, will allow the 'ship of state' to right itself and sail into far less troubled waters. Furthermore, it will allow the Democratic party to wrestle control of their battered party back from the grasp of the socialist/communists now controlling and destroying it. The Republican party, as well, needs voter integrity to guarantee the votes of their party members are honestly recorded. We here in the United States have a wonderful Constitutional Republic system of government; it is the envy of the world. We have ample laws protecting our way of life; we don't need a plethora of new laws; we need to enforce and protect the ones we have.

Editorial: To Understand Green Insanity, Follow the Money

In recent years it has become popular to ignore and shout down the opinions garnered from volumes of research and published works done over past decades by established, reputable, and non-politically controlled, climatologists. To be fair, in many cases these 'new' climatologists and their 'new' data disputing established research, are well meaning young people. The problem is that they also come equipped with 'new' equipment that is able to produce data and measure virtually anything on Earth you can think of concerning ocean temperatures and atmospheric data, while also producing satellite images of literally anything imaginable. The problem with these mountains of data is the long-term effect of whatever is being measured is not provable and is only speculation. Trying to place the blame for current climate changes on man and project these changes eons ahead into geologic time frames is a fool's errand. Comparing real-time climate events with climate change that occurred over thousands of years is simply not possible. What is possible, and what has been done for decades, is to analyze polar ice cores. These cores tell us without any doubt, that over the millennia there have been many times our planet has had greater and lesser amounts of carbon, as well as higher and lower ocean levels and temperatures. All without any help or hindrance from man or the internal combustion engine.

However, the bigger problem associated with naive people getting too much information, is how these volumes of data are being manipulated and interpreted; especially when these naive people are being funded with money from administrations, individuals, and organizations that do not necessarily have the best interests of the United States at heart. It has been repeatedly proven that political actors are funding the vast amount of this 'new' research. In other words, if you want to get a lucrative government grant, you had better see to it that your research reads in such a way that it tows the particular 'green line' of these politicians. Put another way: "Those that push the 'green' get the green." Sadly, the true purpose of these 'false flag' panic warnings from slanted research, was made crystal clear in the words uttered by former president Obama, when he stated, "Maybe it's time for the United States to be taken down a notch."

This dark money control of the direction in which previous administrations have been thinking is evident in their promoting the false idea that carbon is killing the Earth. Before attacking this life-essential element, they were pushing the loss of the ozone layer where aerosols and freon were cited as the big culprits. Subsequently the use of these products was dramatically reduced in America. In the case of freon gas, the product was virtually eliminated and replaced with a far less efficient alternative chemical. Now many years later, we find that the supposed imminent loss of the ozone layer was simply not true. New data from supposedly even more accurate equipment shows the ozone layer is totally intact and in fact was never in danger of going away in the first place. Is that because the United States reduced its use of aerosols? Of course not.

Honey Bee Down

Honey Bee you must take care,
Its not yet summer, its cold out there.

Not enough sweet flowers are yet in bloom,
Staying out too late can spell your doom.

Yet you tarried, and fell down; cold,
And today I found you near death, but spirit bold.

I thought you dead, carelessly rolled you,
on the patio, with my big foot.
But saw you move so ever slowly, and I quickly took, a second look.

Then gently, very carefully, slid you on a tiny paper,
Carried you out to the bright sunshine,
so the heat, you could maybe savor.

Placed you softly on a flower, come early, to spring bloom.
Watched you slowly, painfully, bravely,
crawl toward some pollen, to try and groom.

But you so weak; so cold, and broken,
maybe I too, have caused you harm,
How else can I help you, rise and make your way back home?

A tiny dollop of honey, placed on the flower, with a toothpick so very thin,
A sudden quick reaction, you struggle towards it, this awful battle, you may still win.

You taste the honey, and in a moment, start to buzz, begin to sway,
A few more hops, some little wiggles,
you jump up and fly away.

My heart gives a leap, Brave Bee you once more roam.
Good luck in all your travels, as you wing, your way back home.

03/27/11

At the end of the day, at least for now, these idiots have seemed to achieve their purpose, since the United States is, literally, the only major industrialized country in the world that has actually reduced their carbon imprint. What is not talked about nearly enough is that by reducing this carbon imprint, in order to 'save the planet', as a country we have incurred great cost. It has hobbled and ruined much of our energy and manufacturing sector, and as Obama apparently wanted; it has indeed, "taken the United States down a notch." The reality of chasing the 'Green Climate Ghost' with the United States subsequently incurring increased costs in energy and loss of efficiency, has severely hampered our ability to be competitive on the world economic stage. Meanwhile, as we are hobbled with completely inefficient 'carbon capture' power plants, India and China are bringing new coal-powered 'non-carbon capturing' power plants online daily. Gee, who is supplying the United States with the idiotic, non-efficient, unreliable windmills, and solar cells? India and China.

A few factoids the 'green cartel' really doesn't want out and something the public needs to realize is that the average life span of a solar panel 25-30 years. The amount of largely toxic waste this equipment creates is estimated to create 9.8 million metric tons of waste in the next few years. Additionally, a recent study found that solar panels create 300 times more toxic waste per unit of energy than a nuclear power plant. It is hopeful that the new political awakening in our country will be able to 'see the forest for the trees' and once more put our citizens needs before politically driven, bullshit climate politics.

Wisinski's Observations:

Disclosure On Painting Estimates: In writing the Turk and Fastbrush Painting Company story for the last issue of Crapper, I mentioned getting an estimate for 'painting my house'. In the interest of 'coming clean' it needs to be disclosed that since our house and neighbor Wisinski's house are similar, his estimate was the one I used. Of course, being a loyal reader of Crapper, he called me on it: "Chuck, in your last issue of Crapper you used the $24,000 estimate to paint your house from the estimate I had gotten earlier." Me laughing: "Your point?"

Wisinski and I on Loud Restaurant Music: Both Wisinski and I dislike loud music in restaurants. Wisinski related a story where he recently found himself in such a restaurant and sarcastically remarked to a waiter: "Hey, tell the disc jockey to turn up the music volume a little more, will you?" Waiter: blank look.

Uncomfortable Facts:

Problem: The American consumer is financing the Chinese Communist Party war machine.

Solution: Think about the origin of products you are buying.

Problem: By purchasing Russian petroleum, Europe is helping finance Russia's war machine.

Solution: The United States and non-communist countries can easily supply the petroleum energy needs of Europe.

Problem: Socialism/Communism is a failed political ideology based on envy. It has killed and enslaved untold millions of people around the world. Insane as it may seem this socialist/communist doctrine has wormed its way into the political system of the United States.

Solution: Voter integrity is an absolute necessity. We must get rid of mail in voting, ballot harvesting, questionable voting software, and make sure only American citizens are doing the voting. American voters are not idiots; their voices need to be honestly recorded.

Problem: Former President Jimmy Carter's help and promotion in creating the Department of Education helped him purchase the teacher's union endorsement in 1979. At that time the United States was #1 in education worldwide.

Question: Now 46 years and over 4 trillion dollars later, the United States has fallen to #40 worldwide in education, while at the same time we are #1 only in cost of education per student. One would think DOGE's time spent in cleaning up this mess is time well spent.

Prayer corner: Linda and I both believe in the power of prayer. Please take a moment of time to send one out for someone you feel could use one. On a lighter note: I did get an inquiry in response to the last Crapper from a friend who was wondering if he was the one I felt 'could use a little help'.

As always, thanks for reading Crapper, and remember, we have our families, our friends, our health, and time. The rest is smoke and mirrors!

Chuck, Linda and Jack
